CompensACTION: Mobilizing carbon finance for food security and environmental benefits

A side-event at The Africa Climate Week, Nairobi

Join us at our event to learn about the essential paradigm shift required to transform agriculture and food systems.

Discover how compensating smallholder farmers for their multifunctional services can positively impact nature and climate-positive agriculture. Explore the CompensACTION initiative, launched under the German G7 presidency, which aims to provide fair compensation for agricultural producers, especially smallholders, in developing countries. Gain insights into innovative carbon-based compensation schemes that leverage public and private climate finance to create climate-effective food systems. Learn about replicable and scalable solutions that align with climate and Sustainable Development Goal targets.

Be part of this session to explore best practices, lessons learned, and the opportunity to engage in partnership under the CompensACTION Initiative to accelerate impact and secure a sustainable and climate-resilient future for Africa.
